VIRTUS: NATIONAL RESEARCH CONGRESS ON VALUES EDUCATION 2018

"Teaching and Learning Towards Moral Excellence"

Great Eastern Hotel, Quezon City

August 18-20, 2018

CALL FOR PAPERS AND PARTICIPATION

Digital technologies have allowed parents, educators and students to gain access to insurmountable amounts of information. Without a doubt, the availability of large volumes of information have been a boon and a bane not just for individuals but to the society as well. For some people, the digital age has been the gateway to new knowledge, social cohesion, and progress. However, there are also instances wherein digital technologies have been used to spread mis-information, create bias, promote social disruption and cause pain. Without a doubt, the use of digital technologies has shaped the modern age and will continue to influence the society. For educators, the digital age is an era of "storm and stress" at the same time an opportunity to be more effective in responding to the challenges of the teaching vocation. It is in this context that Lumina Foundation leads the academic inquiry: "How should values educators teach and how can students practice moral excellence in these modern times?"

VIRTUS: National Research Congress on Values Education 2018 with the theme "Teaching and Learning Towards Moral Excellence" seeks to bring together values educators from different institutions across the country. It aims to gather researchers and values educators and involve them in an academic engagement that will bring moral excellence to the forefront of teaching values. The congress is also an opportunity for values educators to forge personal networks and jumpstart academic linkages to raise the quality of research and values education in the country.

Accepted papers from the research congress may be published in the Asia Pacific Journal of Multidisciplinary Research, a CHED accredited journal and a partner publication of Lumina Foundation

Sub Themes:

Values Education

Philosophy and Humanities

Religion and Spirituality

Campus Ministry and Worship

Community Engagement

Service Learning
